ARIZONA CAPITAL LANDSCAPE STUDY

CAPITAL REIMAGINED

Working Together to Shape The Future of Arizona

The Capital Landscape Study is Arizona's first statewide initiative to examine how capital flows, and where it falls short, across housing, small business, nonprofit infrastructure, and community lending. Through statewide engagement, the study will uncover gaps, surface opportunities, and lay the groundwork for a more connected and responsive capital system to power Arizona's economic future.

What This Study Will Deliver

A Capital Map of Arizona: A clear, data-informed picture of how investment is distributed across housing, nonprofits, and small businesses to guide smarter, more strategic decision-making.

Spotlight Opportunities for Growth: Identify regions and sectors with untapped potential, helping funders and institutions align resources where they'll matter most.

Build a Shared Vision Across Sectors: Unite voices from finance, philanthropy, government, and community around a coordinated strategy for investment and impact.

Deliver an Investment Playbook: Transform insights into practical strategies for funding, legislation, and systems-level reform, so leaders can move from insight to action.

Strengthen Arizona's Capital Ecosystem: Lay the groundwork for a more responsive, coordinated, and resilient capital infrastructure to support long-term statewide growth.

Seed a Statewide Investment Model: Establish the foundation for a future mechanism that aligns public and private capital to invest in Arizona's greatest assets; its people and communities.

It's not just research. It's a strategic effort to pinpoint capital gaps, align public and private partners, and build the foundation for a more connected, purpose-driven investment system statewide.
